PLACING CATTLE THROUGH WEST

Local Committees Being Formed by Agricultural Credit Body.

Local committees are now being formed throughout the three western provinces of Manitoba, Alberta, and Saskatchewan, under the direction of the Dominion Agricultural Credit Company Limited, with the object of preparing for the spring work consequent upon its assistance to farmers in diversified farming methods.

The company operating with a large revolving fund is obtaining for responsible farmers cattle and sheep to be placed on farms as foundation stock.

From the head office in Regina requests have gone out for co-operation on the part of the rural business men and bankers in forming the local committees which pass upon and recommend requests for purchase of livestock on credit.

These committees consist of not less than three members, according to H. O. Powell, general manager of Dominion Agricultural Credit Co. Limited. Wherever possible, a banker, a business man, and a farmer are included on the committee and whenever the district agricultural agent is present in an advisory capacity.

Being keenly interested in the welfare of their community, a lively interest in the operations of the company is being evinced throughout the west by these committees, according to Mr. Powell, who has great faith in the co-operative element engendered during the process of stocking Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Alberta farms with cattle and sheep.

BROOKS FAILS TO LIFT THE M'DONALD CUP

Through here the first of the curling season, the McDonald trophy, has spent a comfortable winter in Basanto, and will probably remain here for the rest of the season.

Eight attempts to lift the cup from its all-winter resting place have ended in failure, and the latest attempt, made by the Brooks club last Monday night, was a one-sided victory for Basanto.

McLara and Currie, the two cup skips, both won their games handsily, McLara beating J. Hubbs 21-11, and Currie defeating F. Berry 25-9. The ice was true and keen, and the visiting curlers enjoyed the same.

The two rinks the Brooks club had originally planned to send up for the cup play were unable to come, so substitute rinks filled the gap.

Basanto's win against Brooks was the ninth McDonald cup victory this season.

GOVERNMENT GETTING PARANOID
 Browne's government has gone on a wild "economy spree." Every source of revenue is being explored and expenditures are mercilessly cut with the pruning knives of the budgetary balance.

Not content with lessening motor and truck licenses, leaving an income tax, making drastic cuts in expenditure, the Alberta government's latest move is to reduce by ten per cent the payments under the Mothers' Allowance Act.

A widow with four children now receives a monthly allowance of $46. In future this will be reduced to $40.50.

Imagine what a job it will be to provide, clothe, and feed five people on $40.50 a month!

This move of the provincial government is one of harsh parsimony. It will cause much discomfort in families now living on the mothers' allowance, and will save only a few thousand mean dollars for the government.

MAN'S WORK
 "My work is done. Why wait?" Thus wrote George Eastman, the millionaire kodak man, before he fired the shot that ended his own life last Monday.

There is a note of resignation and despair in the message. One is almost tempted to call the man a quitter though he did great things and spent huge sums in philanthropy during his 77 years of life.

Greater men than Eastman have died at an advanced age while in the midst of work.

Their work was not done. They still found much interest in life, much work that was yet to be done for the benefit of mankind. And they were busily engaged in their tasks when the grim reaper came along and cut them down.

If Eastman had pleaded intense suffering which he desired to end, or even if he had said nothing at all, it would have been much better.

To leave this world of toil after saying, "My work is done," is a sad and ignoble ending to an otherwise notable career.

A THOROUGH INVESTIGATION NEEDED
 Irrigation farmers on C. P. R. land gained a measure of victory in their fight for a readjustment of their contracts when the committee appointed to investigate their difficulties reported to the legislature on Tuesday.

The committee concluded its report with the statement that much good might be effected by the appointment of some person or persons to negotiate with the company for the purpose of effecting such adjustments, modifications, and amendments to the company and its contract holders as will result in the payment to the company of a fair price for land, having regard to its normal productive capacity.

While the committee made its investigations in the Western Section, the results also largely apply to the Eastern Section.

In writing of the 1931 interest and making further concessions to those who are able to pay some interest and principal the C. P. R. has already taken a step toward settling the contract holder out of his financial difficulties, but a thorough investigation and recommendations by an independent party would result in much good for both the company and the farmers.

THE REVOLUTIONARY KATHARINE NEWLIN BURT

TENTH INSTALLMENT

"Is this you, Mr. Kent? Michael Rory has just telephoned from the police station. It seems that your office was entered last night. He caught a boy leaving by the window. I don't believe anything's been taken."

Felix committed himself to an oath.

"Yes, sir, I know how it must feel. When I heard it, it went right through me like a bullet. About one o'clock or a little earlier, Rory thought he heard a movement on our floor, and let himself into the outer office. There was a light moving close to the inner threshold. He caught a young boy in the act of climbing in at the window."

"Rory struck him over the head with his stick. Nothing seems to be disturbed. The safe is just as usual. All the papers on your desk and inside it are intact. I do believe, Mr. Kent, that no harm's been done. But I'm here to go over your papers in that safe. And, though Rory is almost sure he was climbing in of course he might have been searching out. No, sir. They didn't find anything on him. They're holding him at the station. You'll be back before long."

"I'd have to make it by airplane to do that, Miss Becky."

"Well, perhaps it isn't that important but I do feel kind of scared. Kent, without troubling himself to reassure her fears, hung up and pondered the exasperating news."

If the thief had taken something from that safe - a thousand hideous betrayals darted through his fancy, whitening his lips, pulling at the corners of his mouth, making his face, his hair, his eyes, his face.

He stood up, he'd take to the air. No use putting himself to the strain of these imaginary disasters. At precisely noon, Charles having been warned by wire to meet him at the landing field, Felix presented himself in his office.

Miss Becky was glad to see him. She repeated to him the disorganised details of her information. One that she added, caught Kent's breath.

"What Michael does say that for an instant he kind of thought might be the boy threw something down to the court before he knocked him out."

Kent was now at the safe and his face was pinched as he began to pull out the contents of the metal drawers.

Miss Deal said timidly: "By the by, Mr. Kent, Mr. Harlowe's been ringing and ringing to ask for you."

"Mr. Harlowe," snapped Kent. "If she rings again put her off until I'm through with this. Just tell her I'm on my way from Washington and that you'll put me in touch with her as soon as I get in. It's some idiotic woman business about the wedding."

He stopped in the middle of that word.

Miss Deal turned her place near upon him and all the blood in her body rushed up into her square face.

"Oh, great heaven, what's gone?" Kent had stood up. He was chalk white, a pallor that showed blue about his lips.

"Get me the police station quickly!"

A minute later, Felix, seated at his desk, was stalling space with his questions. Between his brows a deep straight line looked like a scar.

He identified himself to the voice at the other end of the telephone, and then went on, "You've got the man my night watchman caught in my inner office early this morning. Has he been searched? . . . Yes, I'll hold the wire."

While he waited Kent moved the fingers of his left hand in and out like a tiger's claws.

"Nothing, eh? But I tell you he did get some papers. Yet she's missing. Important papers. . . . An accomplice at the foot of the fire escape? Jore! Get his name, his whereabouts. . . . Well, get 'em. Find out. Can't you make the boy speak?"

The officer at the other end demurred at some length.

Said Felix presently, interrupting, "A woman? What difference does that make? Oh well, do tell with such hysterical speed. . . . I'll take the quicker if you'll turn over the works. I'll take the responsibility. All of it, I tell you, his voice lifted to a shrill whining scream. "You've got to get back those papers. I'll make your place down there no hot for you that you'll wish you'd put your young lady on a gridiron to save your own skins."

Except for an uncertain sort of rumble, he said no further, but pressed from the other speaker. Felix sat, his hand picking roughly at a blotter, his face ugly as though it watched torment.

He beat forward again. "Want to speak to me? Won't speak to anyone else?" He sat thinking. "All right. Keep her squirming till I get there. Trust me to make her come clean."

Miss Becky asked no questions to her Great Chief turned to the door. A moment later the phone rang shrilly.

"Oh, Mrs. Harlowe, I am so sorry. He was here but he's just gone out. I did tell him and he just hadn't a second to get around to calling. He was brought back on very urgent business and, as it's turned out, the matter is even more serious than he feared. I'll take your message. . . . Yes, indeed, Mrs. Harlowe, I'll keep it perfectly quiet. I'll tell it only to Mr. Kent himself privately at the earliest possible moment."

She listened, her face was all aghast.

"Oh, Mrs. Harlowe, how dreadful that sounds. . . . Oh, I am so sorry. Yes indeed I will."

Five minutes later, having in the interval walked distractedly up and down the room, she wrote down on a pad: "Urgent. Miss Jocelyn Harlowe was not in her bedroom this morning. After repeated announcements the door was forced. She had gone to bed early. None of her outer clothes seemed to be missing. There was no message or note of any kind, and no explanation yet had been discovered of her absence. She seems to have completely disappeared. No one saw her leave the building."

This message, Miss Becky crying and blowing her nose, placed in an envelope and sealed. She looked at "For Mr. Kent, Urgent. Personal. Private." and propped it conspicuously on his desk.

The room where Lydia Standish sat waiting for the arrival of Jocelyn Harlowe's fiancé was neither comfortable nor luxurious. It was on the contrary incredibly grimy, dingy, depressing and suggestive of down-trodden gully and haunted lives. Three men were in attendance upon her. They ranged her like a wolf pack and like a wolf pack they snarled and snarled and circled and snarled, wearing her out so that she might drop down, apparently to suffer the fleebing of their fangs.

The morning of that April day which was only so short a time of hours before her wedding hour, she had sat on a hard chair gripping its edge with both her hands, turning her white face from this tormentor to that, listening to threats that made her blood throb then leap away from her seared heart.

She still wore Nick's shabby suit but her collar had been torn open under Rory's grasp. Her face was pale but it had been taken from her and above the crumpled male attire her fine feminine throat and head gave an effect of startling delicacy. There was a particle of her vivid color in this trapped face but the tilted eyes flared, angry and golden, and the lips still went tight when she closed them at the end of each reiterated reply.

"I won't tell you anything," Jock must be given his chance, her will doggedly repeated. This until, after some outside twisting, her arm had been savagely twisted and she had turned faint. Then, "I won't speak to anyone but Felix Kent," she had begun to weep.

"Why do you keep on torturing me now?" she asked, when this message and one of the men's departure and return with the news that Kent was on his way, had brought no succor to the "rains of the deluge" and threats. She had begun to weep.

A voice in the room beyond her torturer chamber put a question sharply and Jocelyn opened her strange and lovely eyes wide.

That was Felix Kent. For the first time they were about to meet. She forgot her attendant inquisitors. She sat up straight, commanding the cruel bewildered throbbing of her head, and as the door opened she rose slowly to her feet.

Felix Kent, staring down at her, turned scarlet and his eyes changed. He drew in his breath, put up one hand, let it fall and mastered his face. He turned to the men.

"Here, let me alone with her a moment. I think I've seen the girl before. There's more in this."

This is hardly a police matter, I'll explain. Just let me have her for an instant. His even voice cracked under the force he will had put upon it but smoothed itself immediately, "and I think I can find out all I want to know."

The men, curious, grimly amused and cynical, went willingly away. The greasy door was closed. Felix waited. He moved close to Jocelyn, caught her wrists in his two hands and drew them up to his breast, pulling her near to him in a gesture that was passionately possessive, furious, masterful.

JAP TROOPS TO WITHDRAW

TOKIO, March 14.—The war office announced today that the 11th Division of Japanese army troops and one brigade of the 12th division has been ordered to return home from Shanghai "in view of the treaty improvement of the situation."

Earlier today it was announced that the general staff decided to ask the approval of Emperor Hirohito for the earliest possible withdrawal of Lieutenant-General Kenkichi Ueda's original Shanghai expedition.

War minister Araki, it was understood, plans to recall the Shimomoto brigade at once, and the 11th Division within a few days, leaving only the 14th Division on duty at Shanghai. Such action would reduce land forces in the Chinese battle area to only about 10,000.

The Week's News

FINANCIAL COLLAPSE PACIFIC JAPANESE

NEW YORK, March 14.—The present Japanese government, which repudiates the military party fostering aggressive Japanese policy of the past six months, is going ahead with exploitation of the great natural resources of Manchuria while it awaits the Wall Street Journal.

No improvement in trade has followed the gold embargo put into effect last September, the Journal says in commenting on the possibility of a need for exchange restrictions to protect the yen if it declines once.

However, in Manchuria, says the Journal, "a wealthier land and people seem in prospect."

Plans are said to be going ahead for heavy immigration of Japanese into Manchuria. The migration plans are based on extension of the mechanized farming experiment undertaken a couple of years ago by the S. M. R. on the Liaoting Peninsula. Climate and soil are those of the United States, where, the dispatch says, and all that are needed are new rail outlets—and the Japanese are building them.

GERMANY IMPORES TARIFFS ON CANADA

BERLIN, March 16.—The official Reichsanzeiger today published a decree enforcing the so-called super-tariff against Canada, effective April 1, on barley, fresh and dried canned fruit, fish, lobsters, oysters, turbot, butter, flour, sugar, soap, board, aluminum, shoes, and certain kinds of machinery. There is no extra duty on Canadian wheat.

The new tariff may be suspended in six months on condition Canada enters negotiations with Germany forthwith for a commercial treaty.

The decree authorizes the German minister of finance to increase existing duties 100 per cent or more. The same conditions in the decree apply to imports from Poland.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT BALANCES BUDGET

LONDON, Essex, England, March 15.—Stanley Baldwin, Lord President of the Council, announced tonight that the current budget would balance.

In his first public political speech since he joined the National Government cabinet, the Conservative leader said:

"Today we are in a position when we know that the budget will balance. We know that borrowing on current accounts has been stopped, and I hope stopped forever. We are in a position to look with obedient sympathy on those great countries which have not yet succeeded in balancing their current budget."

Journalists crystals will permit the passage of light only in one direction.

Within recent years wood pulp has been used for the production of artificial silk (celanese), which is made into stockings, underclothing and dress materials.

MORE CONTROL OVER INSURANCE COMPANIES

OTTAWA, March 14.—Tightening of state control over insurance companies was debated in the House of Commons tonight by Premier R. B. Bennett. An investigation of the industry might be held some time in the future, he said, and "I am hopeful that some of our provinces, uniting with the Dominion, will agree it is to the public interest that there should be a central control of insurance."

More stringent restrictions on the investing rights of insurance companies may be imposed, said the prime minister, who admitted he was not satisfied with the existing terms of the federal insurance law. He reminded the house that he advocated at one time restricting insurance companies to the purchase of Dominion of Canada four per cent bonds.

DEBT RELIEF FOR FARMERS IS ADVOCATED

EDMONTON, March 14.—Debt relief for farmers in the debt belt of the south under a plan of cancellation of interest on loans and mortgages and penalties on taxes from November 1, 1925, was urged upon the agricultural committee of the house Saturday.

Speaker after speaker told of the mounting debts of the southern farmers, who were about to give up in despair. While 75 per cent of these producers were optimistic, they felt a vital need for relief in these times.

It was claimed that there was no hope of farmers being able to discharge the debts created in the past few years. Neither would a moratorium meet the situation. What they required was a debt compromise so that they would be certain of some measure to be able to discharge their obligations and start carry on.

JAP PLANE FORCED DOWN BY RUSSIANS

LONDON, March 14.—An Exchange telegraph dispatch from Harbin, Manchuria, today said a Japanese airplane was reported to have crossed the Siberian border at Pogranichnaya, where it was surrounded by Russian planes which pursued the Japanese aircraft and forced it down.

The dispatch also said that in the riot at Manchou, on the Siberian border, a number of Japanese troops were looted and a Japanese merchant was killed.

A division of the Japanese army in Manchuria was ordered to the frontier to restore order in what was regarded as a serious situation. Observers thought, the dispatch said, that this approach by Japanese troops to a point so close to the border as Manchou might be particularly dangerous, in view of the recent mobilization of Soviet troops on the border.

SWEDISH MATCH KING COMMITTS SUICIDE

PARIS, March 14.—Governments and financiers moved today to prevent world-wide financial complications threatened by the suicide of Ivar Kreuger, whose mighty fortunes, built on tiny matches, had strengthened the financial framework of 12 nations, including world powers.

Kreuger, dominant figure in the immense Kreuger and Toll interests, killed himself Saturday, his heart depressed by world economic distress, his shoulders bowed by the weight of responsibilities his own fortune thrust upon him.

None of the dead man's financial associates or business friends expected financial repudiation. His suicide normally would indicate, they said.

C. K. CAMERA MILLIONAIRE TAKES OWN LIFE

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 14.—George Eastman, 77, millionaire manufacturer, philanthropist, and big game hunter, shot himself to death on Monday in his east avenue home here.

He was widely known as a genius of the photographic industry, art collector, and big game hunter, as well as for his philanthropies. His benefactions at the time of his death had passed the seventy-five million mark.

Dr. Audley D. Stewart, announcing that Eastman had shot himself after sending all attendants away from his bedside, said Eastman left this note:

"To my friends:
"My work is done. Why wait?
"Dr. Stewart was Eastman's personal physician for many years.

ALBERTA LEADS ALL WEST IN GRAIN SHIPPED

The latest government report shows that, for the first time in the history of western Canada, Alberta has surpassed Saskatchewan in the shipment of wheat and oats.

Recent figures supplied by the federal department of agriculture give Alberta a greater delivery in wheat of 653,143 bushels, and in oats of 2,660,993 bushels, total deliveries from the 1921 crop being Alberta, 99,068,006 bushels of wheat and 12,592,501 bushels of oats; Saskatchewan 98,770,073 bushels wheat and 15,511,008 bushels of oats.

In normal years Saskatchewan deliveries almost double the quantity delivered by Alberta, but the unprecedented drought over a large area of southern Saskatchewan just year resulted in a very serious falling off in wheat production in that province.

REFUSE CHANGE TRUCK LICENSES

EDMONTON, March 14.—There will be no reduction in the new corporation tax, nor on the tax on commercial delivery vehicles, Hon. J. E. Brownlee informed a delegation of the Alberta branch of Canadian Manufacturers' Association which waited on the cabinet Monday forenoon in connection with the convention just opened here.

RECIPES

Baked Bananas
Use one banana for each person. Peel the fruit and place in a baking dish. Grate over each the rind of half an orange and slightly less lemon rind. Mix the juice of one orange and one lemon with half cup sugar, and pour over the fruit. Bake in a hot oven for 25 minutes. Serve hot with unsweetened whipped cream which has just a pinch of salt and comes right from the ice box.

Sweet Sandwich
Rainbow sandwiches are nourishing. Very good for children. Stone the raisins, after cleaning with flour, and put them between slices of buttered brown bread. A squeeze of lemon juice will improve the flavor.

Potato Surprise
If a little steak and some mashed potatoes are left over from dinner, a nice dish can be made from them. Line a baking dish with mashed potatoes. In the centre place the chopped steak and thickened gravy well seasoned. Cover with a layer of potatoes and bake in a hot oven until nicely browned on top.

Manitoba more than quadrupled its output of gold in 1931 as compared with the previous year.

The automobile has been one industry wherein the demand always seems to expand almost indefinitely with the supply.

SPORT NOTES

A Calgary man, F. H. Rushworth, an electrician employed by the T. Eaton Co., was lucky enough to draw a horse in the Irish sweepstakes to be run March 16. He will win a minimum of $5,000, with a chance for one of the larger prizes.

The dash of the Calgary Bronks and Trail Smoker Riders in Allan cup play were two of the best hockey games seen in Calgary this season. The Trail team had an advantage in speed, but the wizardry of the Calgary goalies, and the ability of the Bronks to get in the final winning punch, won the series for the Mustangs.

Stuart Murdoch, a former Bassano boy, is playing with the Trail Smoker Riders this season.

Joe Steed backed down on his wrestling bout scheduled with Jack Taylor, Calgary star artist and Canadian champion. Taylor will defend his championship title Monday next against Steve Savage, Chicago wrestler. It may turn out to be a savage bout.

The N. H. L. play-offs will start March 24.

Jack Dempsey was taken ill Sunday while on the exhibition tour.

The curling club of Delia has successfully defended the MacPherson cup for the sixteenth time—losing it once, and that time it was only away from Delia 48 hours. Youngstown, Craigville, and Hanna, have all had a try at it, especially Hanna, which has made 13 brave attempts to win the much coveted trophy. It has been rumored that the Hanna curling club is negotiating for permanent residence in Delia, until they secure the MacPherson cup.

Art Flanagan won the pool on the Bronks-Weyburn hockey game last Tuesday night. Art is lucky that way. He won two baseball pools, in the world's series last fall.
